What Makes the Home?

Not the house, however fine it may be; not its furniture, pictures and appointments. The wife and mother makes the home, and no spouse of going home means to go back into the shelter of the mother's love and care.

And when woman ill-serves the mother's strength, the home-life suffers. The food is not cooked as she would like it.

Elsewhere, the lack of wifely amorousness and motherly-thoughtfulness is apparent.

When while this wife and mother comes back to take her old place in the family, the wife of women who, because of womanly ills, had been shut out of hours life and home, have been enabled to once more take their place in the family after being cured by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Prescriptions. It cures rheumatism, neuralgia, headache, dandruff, heat, inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes women strong, sick women well.

"I commenced taking your Pleasant Prescriptions about the 10th of last December one year ago," writes Mrs. Mary E. Taylor, of St. Louis, Missouri. "I have been very show about writing to you, although I am thankful I am now well, and I thank you a thousand times for your kind advice. You are a doctor who has given me a new lease of life. I have taken one half dozen bottles of each medicine, and am able to do my work in the kitchen, wash, clean, sew, cook and milk. In fact, I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant cure constitutes a revolution and its almost countless consequences. They do not rest on the system nor begin the pill habit.

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE

A Gem From Senator Vest—What the Power of Elocution Will do With a Jury.

One of the most beautiful tributes ever paid to a dog was delivered by Senator Vest, of Missouri, a few years ago. He was attending court in a country town, and while waiting for the trial of a case in which he was interested, he was urged by the attorney in a dog case to help them. He was paid a fee of $250 by the plaintiff. Valuable evidence was introduced to show that the plaintiff had shot the dog in male, while other evidence went to show that the dog had attacked the defendant. Vest took no part in the trial, and was not disposed to speak. The attorney, however, urged him to make a speech or else they would think he had not earned his fee. Being thus urged, he arose, scanned the face of each juror, and said:

"A gentleman of the jury:—The best friend a man has in the world may turn against him and become his enemy. His son or daughter, that he has reared with loving care, may prove ungrateful. Those who we distrust, turn upon us, those whom we trust, with our happiness and our good name, may become traitors to their faith. The money that a man has, he may lose. It flee away from him when he needs it most. A man's reputation may be sacrificed in a moment of ill-considered action. Those who are prone to fall on their knees to do us honor when success is with us, may be forced to throw the stuns of malleus, when failure settles its clouds upon our heads. The one absolutely necessary unselish friend that a man can have in this world, the one that never deserts him, the one that never proves ungrateful or treacherous, is the dog. A man's dog stands by him in poverty, in health and in sickness. He will sleep on the cold ground, where the wintry winds blow and the snow drives fiercely, if only he may be near his master's side. He will kiss the hand that has no food to offer; he will lick the sores and wounds that come to encounter with the roughness of this world. He guards the sleepless master as if he were a prince. When all other friends desert, he remains. When riches take wings and reputation falls to pieces, he is as constant in his love as the sun in its journey through the heavens. If fortune drives the master forth an outcast in the world, friendless and homeless, the faithful dog asks no higher privilege than that of accompanying him to guard against danger, to fight against his enemies, and when the last scene of ill comes, and death takes the master in his embrace, and his body is laid away in the cold ground, no matter if all other friends pursue their way, there by the grave will his noble dog be found, his head between his paws, his eyes sad, but upon alert watchfulness, faithful and true even in death."

Then Vest sat down. He had spoken in a low voice, without a jest. He made no reference to the evidence or the merits of the case. When he finished judge and jury were wiping their eyes. The jury fled but soon entered with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $500. He had sued for $250. It is even said that some of the jurors wanted to hang the defendant.

A Law to Make People Honest.

Last December the city council of Chicago passed an ordinance compelling people to be honest in their dealings and a commission was appointed to detect and punish violators of the ordinance. Since that time the Official Testator reports that he has condemned and destroyed nearly 10,000 false and illegal weights, measures and scales. Many of these were made intentionally short. Milk bottles are once shod to the quart were in general use and this item alone was costing the people $1,000 a day in Chicago. Coal measures, grocer's measures and all kinds of baskets, butter moulds and other contrivances were bound to be designed to defraud the novices. Detectives were sent out to watch coal delivery men and they were caught selling coal intended for customers and a regular traffic of this sort was broken up. Scales were furnished to customers to weigh meat, ice and other supplies sent to them, and report all shortages. The ordinance has been of great benefit to the poor especially, as the rich who buy in whole barrels and other large quantities, do not suffer so much from dishonest methods. It would not be a bad idea for all cities to adopt this Chicago plan of watching people to make them honest.

HIS LIFE SAVED

By Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

"I am sure that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at one time saved my life," says A. E. LaFayette, of Gregory Landing Clark county, Missouri. "I was in such bad shape that the doctors said I could not live. When I was at the lowest ebb, one of my neighbors brought in a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and I took it and got instant relief. I soon got up and around. That was nine years ago and I am still in good health. Since then that medicine has always been in my house and always will be. It is the best on earth."

CHICAGO has a new Elijah.
SOUTH Carolina would have neither
Tillman nor McLaurin, but her governors would have both.

BRITAIN has sustained another reverse at the hands of the Boers. Yet they have been conquered for the last six months.

The courts in Louisville would rid the city of gamblers, but Beckham would not and so it goes. Criminals believe in protection.

It nature had buried inexhaustible fountain of liquor in the bowels of the earth, would man have accepted nature's gift or would he have made coal oil for his stimulating beverage?

Is Ohio county for sale? From what we have been able to glean from the boastful spise of the Democratic county ticket, they think so at least; for they make much noise about the capacity of their ticket for raising a large corruption fund.

As much as the Democratic brethren are boasting of their money bag candidate, it would be nothing but right for the public to learn just how all this fortune has been amassed in so short a time. All this will reach the public a little later on through THE REPUBLICAN.

There are as many plums for reorganizing the Democratic party as there are Democrats—most. We might offer a timely suggestion, that when they meet to reorganize, that they should amend their present character to read: "We will, henceforth, abide by the will of the people as expressed at the polls."

COL. HENRY WATTESEN is again clamoring for the reorganization of the Democratic party and the advent of a new leader—Bryan is entirely to blame for the times and Henry. If once in national affairs is so much demanded, Henry might advocate the adoption of an election law governing national elections, that would remove every element of chance from the result of the election.

The man who resigns his office just because he has a political grudge against some one, and wants to vent his spleen on the stump, to the misfortune of a State, ought not to have office at all, and we have some doubts whether a State is worthy of statehood, that would own such old "scabs."

The Democracy of Ohio county has been favored very kindly by the propitious fates, in endowing its leaders with MONEY and BRAINS, and its candidate with the power and privilege of "carrying the votes of their fellowmen in their vest pockets," an inheritance that bespeaks honor for the fortunate.

No one doubted but what Mr. Bryan would impeach and overrule the decision of the Supreme Court, but what does it amount to any way? It is just Bryan and that's all. No one need be surprised. Mr. Bryan has many weary dreams. He, poor fellow, sees calamity and ruin in every action of the administration.

A Christian county jury finds the deputies who fired into marching miners guilty of manslaughter and sends three of them to the pen for two years each. The trouble came up between union and non-union men and the sheriff played too fair a hand. The miners were organizing for self-protection, which they have a right to do. Instead of two years the verdict ought to have been five or ten.

The Supreme Court is coming in for its part of censure from the third and fourth class newspapers of the country, including the Commoner, edited by the calamity prophet. This abuse is due to the decision of the Court in upholding the administration in its relations toward the Islands. Calamity breeders were expected to call forth the gods of damnation upon the heads of this great tribunal and they have disappointed no one.

Since the election of Mr. Alvin S. Bennett to the office of Representative it is a dead moral certainty, he is asked by some little jackals, if he will support this or that man for the U. S. Senate. Mr. Bennett will support no man that favored the Goebel law or infamous contest, but instead, will support a gentleman who believes in the sanctity of the ballot, and a free and fair count.

Gov. McSwainey, of South Carolina, has declined to accept the resignations of Senators McLaurin and Tillman. McLaurin submits to the Governor's decision, but the pitchfork orator finds fault with Gov. McSwainey and is much given to cagrin. The governor held that the people of South Carolina were entitled to one year of peace from political strife and on this ground declined to accept the resignations.

The grand jury is in session at Hopkinsville and will doubtless air the asylum scandal. It is highly important that it should, for as it is, the State stands in the column of the disgraced. The institution which was dedicated by the State to be the home of purity for the unfortunate, has become a den for the iniquities of the degenerate. It is certainly time for Hopkinsville to do something.

THE REPUBLICAN does not understand where the editor of the Evening Post got his authority to advise the Republic party, and yet he is the most persistent fellow in his effort to force the Republicans to allow him to lead them, advise them and council them in the State. He heads his editorial column with the phrase, "Democratic Newspaper," and still he curses the Democrats on one hand, while he damns the Republicans on the other. Say, brother, please tell us where you are "at" before advising too freely.

The REPUBLICAN is a friend of the old veterans of the '60's and its efforts shall be in advancing every effort of one of that band. We do not like to see the hand of old gray heads imposed upon by one, who denounced them when it was popular to do so, and charged one of the best and most honorable soldiers in being a "Yankee." This same fellow is telling the soldier boys that he was a soldier and merits their votes by reason of this fact. Be not deceived, soldier friends, this fellow was only a camp follower; a straggler, his name is not enrolled upon any record book and because he could not be given an office in the army, refused to do battle for his country. Do not deceive, lest you sue.

Surely there has been no decay in the claims it has made; in the constancy with which those claims have been urged and the resolute and dignified manner in which they have been enforced. To-day it is the most powerful judicial tribunal in the world—it is unique in its jurisdiction and without a parallel in the scope of its jurisdiction. Mr. Carmack cannot hope to rival Senator Tillman in the consciousness of his invincible power equal Mr. Bryan in the boldness of his criticisms. Mr. Carmack is a gentleman and a scholar and such violent rhodomontade does not comport with his gifts, his culture or his manners. Mr. Carmack is the successor of Hugh White, of Andrew Jackson, or Isham Harris, of Hopewell Jackson, and others as brilliant; he represents the State of Polk; and is it not a act of true friendship to recall to his remembrance that the country will measure him as they real these utterances by the standard of those immortal Tennesseeans? Senator Carmack—he advised—the next time think before you talk.—Lexington Herald.

The question is asked the voters of Ohio county: "If prospects for Republican victory were never so flattering in all the history of the party as this year in Ohio county, why is it necessary that a time-tried Republican should come out in a card to notify the public that he is not going to vote the Democratic ticket?" It is necessary because another "A. G. Benton" has appeared with a gaunturous falsehood in his mouth, parading round about that certain influential Republicans were going to support a man who "carries the peoples' votes around in his vest pocket." This question refers to Mr. Sanford Brown's letter, which appeared in last week's REPUBLICAN. Mr. Benton felt that some demagogue was doing him a great injustice by circulating the report that he was for Tom Smith for Clerk, instead of Mr. Ragsdale. These "A. G. Bentons" need their throats cut occasionally, and Mr. Brown happened to strike one of the little devils in a tender place, and he's squealed.

Breckinridge on Senator Carmack
We pity Senator Carmack of Tennessee and we still more pity Tennessee. Mr. Carmack was a very accomplished and successful editorial writer—brilliant, scholarly, sarcastic, attractive. He won no foes, was added nothing to the strength of his party. He drove voters from his party and estranged many from his side. But he made warm friends and admirers of his enemies, said astute and bitter things, "took the bite off" of those he attacked and generally made the reputation of a brilliant and severe editor. He was also a brilliant orator; attractive and eloquent on the stump, scholarly and bitter on the floor of Congress. He is also a cultivated, courtly and pleasant gentleman. He has the abilities which directed and controlled by wisdom can do his State great service. But he has always catered to the extreme wing of his party. He leads that wing which needs no leading, but needs to be restrained. He is turbulent inside his party and aggressive against his party associates who are not willing to be ultra-wine promotion by being an extremist and rallying the extremists to his colors. He is the modern wigmonger with hardly as wonderful a gift of speech and not an equal power of biting sarcasm. He is the imitator of Keith, Preston, Brooks and those who drive moderate, conservative, Democrats out of public life and were quick to denounce such Democrats as drough faces, traitors, cowards. Such men never won a vote for their party; nevertheless it led to victory. The South was censured with many such leaders before the war, after the war and now. Some of them were extraordinary men in intellectual gifts, in graceful scholarship; in winning eloquence, in courteous personal manners and address. They were men of high birth, of easy fortune, of accomplished education, or lovable private life. But they were no wiser than Phœbe and drove the horses of the sun to disaster. Mr. Carmack belongs to this class of leaders; and in those antebellum days he would have ranked among the most delightful of them. He is now an anachronism—if he will not take this as an opprobrious epithet—we mean with the utmost respect. He is as much out of harmony with his times as would Aleibolites if he were to return and become Senator from Tennessee. And when he permits himself to say the Supreme Court is "the deadly spot" in our system, he makes himself somewhat of a laughing stock in the sight of the American people. He could hardly have chosen a more unfortunate and inappropriate phrase. Of all the departments this august court has preserved its pristine vigor, its ancient renown, its historic power. Surely it has shown no sign of decay in its recent judgments. It has upheld its claim to supreme judicial power with the right to declare all laws and the acts of all officers unconstitutional and otherwise; and there has been no undermining in its virile dignity and lofty bearing. There has been no decay in its accustomed erudition, in the width and accuracy of its learning; in the acumen and strength of its reasoning; in the culture exhibited in its opinions. The decay has not been in the desire of his many friends.

GUilty OF MANSLAUGHTER.
MADISONVILLE, KY., June 2.—After a deliberation which lasted 20 hours, the jury in whose hands rested the fate of Deputy Sheriff Lindle and his possemen Johnson, McIntosh and Penoi, charged with killing marching miners, brought in a verdict finding Lindle, Johnson and McIntosh, guilty of manslaughter and fixing their punishment at two years in the State penitentiary. Penoi was dismissed, there being no proof to show he was present when the killing took place. The verdict was a surprise, as it was generally thought there would be a hung jury.

Commonwealth's Attorney Grayot was the only one of the attorneys for the prosecution who seemed confident of a conviction. A motion will be made for a new trial.

The attorneys for the prosecution express themselves as being satisfied, while the attorneys for the defense say the evidence did not warrant conviction. All the lawyers commend Judge T. J. Nunn, before whom the case was tried.

The majority of the attorneys, who have been here for some time, have gone to Princeton where Judge Nunn will hear arguments on the motion to dissolve the injunction issued against union miners and operators.

It is the custom of Christian county to look into the cause of the death of Rudolph Killebrew, aged eleven years, find from the evidence that he came to his death from pistol shot in the hands of Walter Hampton, the ball taking effect just over the nipple of the left breast. We further find that the shooting was done intentionally, June 1, 1911, about 4 o'clock p.m., near Bennettsburg.

inquest, Sunday morning, made an effort to arrest Hampton, but the lad had run away and could not be found. Officers are on the track and he will no doubt soon be captured—Hopkinsville Independent.

It is the custom of Christian county to look into the cause of the death of Rudolph Killebrew, aged eleven years, find from the evidence that he came to his death from pistol shot in the hands of Walter Hampton, the ball taking effect just over the nipple of the left breast. Pt. Leavenworth, Kans., Mar. 31, 01.

Dear readers—it has been reported in your town and community that I was a deserter from the U. S. Army.

It has already been corrected in a former issue of THE REPUBLICAN, but I wish to say a few words, that you may know that I am still a soldier boy and will be until properly discharged.

I do not know how the report stated, but it was the fault of some one in the fort and not in Hartford.

I have never had any desire or intentions of deserting, for I am well pleased and am in the finest cavalry posts in the United States.

We have a riding school here for the purpose of teaching the boys how to ride and to cut monkey shins on horseback. The riding hall is 250 feet by 200 feet, and we are made to lead

our horses in the hall and mount them back, tie up the reins sit up erect told our arms and gallop all around the hall.

Sometimes a fellow falls off but that doesn't amount to much for he is not hurt, and is soon on again, for the horses are well trained and will not hurt you. We are also taught to gallop our horses along and pick up our hats or anything that is easily carried and to dismount and mount without checking the horse.

We have a fine library here and every one is welcome to use it so long as they return the books.

We will be at St. Louis the 15th of June and will stay there three months, and likely go to New Mexico.

I write this short so-called letter, just to let my friends know that I still belong to Uncle Sam.

Yours truly,

ALBERT S. RALPH,
14th Cavalry, Troop E.

HONORS FOR HARDIN CRAIG.

FRIDAY, JUNE 7.

LET THE TARIFF REST.
McKinley Favors Tariff Reform
When it is Necessary.

Protection for American Industries is What America Needs.

Secretary Gage and others familiar with the President's views on the Tariff question are very much amused over the statements in a number of newspapers to the effect that the President wants the Tariff modified. His expressions of opinion on the reciprocity question furnish the ground upon which such inferences are made.

This is the very best authority for saying that all such inferences are without any foundation, whatever the President doesn't want any Tariff changes now, and has not long ago expressed himself to that effect at a meeting in the White House. So far as reciprocity is concerned, his opinion on that subject is just the same now as it was when he supported the reciprocity provision in the McKinley Act of 1890. He frequently spoke in favor of reciprocity in the Fifty-first Congress, and time and again advocated the subject on the stump before he became President. Hence his recent expressions of opinion in regard to reciprocity are no indication of any change in view on his part on the Tariff question.

The Republican party has always favored Tariff changes when deemed to be wise. In that way the Tariff has been changed at different times so that instead of practically all articles being on the dutiable list, as was the case at one time, nearly half of the imports are now altogether free of duty. At the same time there have been reductions in rates on the dutiable articles. There will be other changes in the future, but President McKinley is not in favor of any action in the way of a revision of the Tariff in the existing Congress. But he is in favor of reciprocity, and unquestionably something will be done on that subject at the next session. His views in that respect, however, as already stated, have not changed in the least degree in the last ten years.

Some of the reciprocity treaties sent to the last Congress, it can be said, did not represent any ripe opinion in their favor on the part of the President. He never recommended the ratification of the French treaty. He transmitted it to the Senate without recommendation. In private conversation he is understood to have told some Senators who opposed that treaty that he had not time personally to investigate the merits of each article, but that he was in favor of reciprocity, and that if the treaty was not acceptable to the Senate it should amend it and make it acceptable, as it has done with other treaties. He was opposed, however, to shelving it as was done in the Senate. Still that was largely the result of the Democratic opposition to the shiping an' save other measures which led to the consumption of so much time that the treaties could not be voted on.

Such of them as are alive will undoubtedly be considered by the next Senate, but it does not follow by any means that they will be ratified as drawn up by Commissioner Casson. If he had taken the pains to consult with Senators and had not relied so much on his own ideas as to how the treaties should be drawn they would have fared better with the Senate. Secretary Hayes has learned a lesson in that respect and now, when he is negotiating a treaty, like that concerning the Nicaragua Canal, he takes pains to consult the Senators, and has said that he would not send another treaty to Congress without knowing whether or not it would be ratified. For that reason he had not re-negotiated any treaty since Congress adjourned —Philadelphia Press.
